

REDS GET NO AID FROM PRESIDENT

Wilson Makes Plain Attitude in Kansas City Address

TREATY IS AMERICAN

Pact Brings Out Principles Nation Stands for, He Declares

DISCUSSION REPLACES WAR

Arbitration Central Fact of League of Nations Pact, He Says

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 6.—There will be no American intervention in the government of Germany, said Woodrow Wilson to thousands of guests at the opening session of the international conference of the 44 members of the League of Nations, which opened here yesterday. He stated that they had failed to invoke the Trianon principles in their own affairs.

The president said also that the American masses were quite satisfied with the fact that America may be well off while the treaty of Versailles is being implemented. He stated that they had failed to invoke the Trianon principles in their own affairs.

The Kansas City audience was the best that the president has had up to the present time. Although it was Saturday morning the streets were lined with waiting crowds who came to greet the chief executive and his charming wife. And the convention had also at filled its galleries. The audience was in complete sympathy with the most ardent spirit and his various salutes were cheered and applauded.

Senators Not Bolsheviks.

One departure that the president made was to refer to the "Imperialist spirit" as characterizing some of the opposition to the treaty. He added it placed him in a difficult position, but he said that the senators who are opposed to the treaty are Bolsheviks. Mr. Wilson expressed fervent hope that there would be no spread of International Bolshevik sentiments throughout America.

The president continued his criticism of the senatorial opposition as a class, but he carefully refrained from attacking a particular senator.

He told the audience that he was "reporting to the people" and insisted again and again that when the people realize what is in the treaty, they will insist on its approval. Mr. Wilson also expressed supreme confidence that the treaty will be fully ratified. He insisted that the United States, the American spirit and paid high tribute to the value of the American soldiers who, he said, "won the war."

The stay in Kansas City was of three hours duration. So soon as he concluded his address the president went back to his train where he met the members of the local committee. As in St. Louis the meeting was conducted on a non-partisan basis by the Kansas City chamber of commerce.

As at St. Louis the meeting was entirely non-partisan in character. It was arranged under the auspices of the Kansas City chamber of commerce.

President Wilson was escorted to his place on the platform by ex-Gov. H. C. Meekins, who stood as he walked forward to the front of the big platform. The entire audience had been given small American flags and the men and women stood on their feet and waved them as they cheered.

The president sat smiling at the crowd while waiting for the opening exercises before the presiding officer, Mr. R. A. Parsons, president of the chamber of commerce, could get the attention of the crowd to introduce the president.

The ball was jammed and there

The parade of New York's millions will on that day have the opportunity to witness and will, without doubt, be the home town America's greatest soldier.

was a full concert all along the route that the procession followed from the station.

An elaborate dinner was served to speak well of us away back in the afternoon.

"My President, remember this is the home town of Jim Head," thus merrily brought a good laugh from the audience.

When the president rose in his seat to speak the audience arose with him cheering and shouting for 45 seconds.

It is very inspiring to me to stand in the presence of such an assembly of young citizens," began the president.

It is my duty to report to you what the peace conference did. I came back from Paris bringing one of the greatest documents of human history.

This document brings out all of the principles for which America stands. America's principles stand with us. We have those principles in common. The principles were written into the treaty that never were written into another treaty before. In spirit and essence this treaty is an American document.

Some of the things that America has had most at heart has been to substitute for war decisions of peace. The decisions and principles of the formation is expressed in the other states agreeing not to go to war until they have either arbitration or discussed their matters in controversy.

That is the central principle of government in the United States. We must see that little groups of selfish men are unable to plot the future of America.

The president said that this principle of discussion is a sovereign American principle. Carried out as it is in the league of nations covenant, it will absolutely prevent war, the president said. He then outlined the method the manner in which any nation would be boycotted if it went to war.

"The essence of the treaty is that it promises will be peaceful," the president continued.

The most terrible thing that can happen to a nation is to be thrown out of decent society. No nation will attempt this when this treaty is times-effective.

Senate Disarmament.

Carried out of provisions of this treaty will mean disarmament. It means that hideous machine will disappear. Under this treaty and you will build up a military class belligerent with non-national parts we found there were not willing to make friends unless they were approved by their general staff. We don't want any such thing in America.

You cannot create a military class without installing it in a desire to use its weapons. America has never had such a desire.

"I have no quarrel with them. It has been a pleasure to confer with some of these men and try to tell them what the treaty does. I have a fighting spirit in this matter. If any person tries to defeat this great scheme, I want these men who oppose this treaty to put up one short speech.

"They were half-convinced that Chinese people as well as the rest of the world. We cannot allow imperialism to be restored. If we do this all that has been won must be fought for over again.

"It does not make any difference what kind of a government governs you if it is a minority. We must see that little groups of selfish men are unable to plot the future of America.

The president explained that Germany and Turkey would be the only nations outside of the League of Nations.

He said, "we should decide not to go in, but to wait and later enter with Germany."

This declaration was a signal for another outburst of applause.

The president called attention to the fact that the Philippine Islands have been promised their freedom and declared their independence.

The group in Russia is more despotic than the czar was and more despotic.

I also favor preventing minority government in the United States. We must see that little groups of selfish men are unable to plot the future of America.

The president said that this principle of discussion is a sovereign American principle. Carried out as it is in the league of nations covenant, it will absolutely prevent war, the president said. He then outlined the method the manner in which any nation would be boycotted if it went to war.

This declaration by the president was received with a great burst of applause. The president referred to the group that had been making a safeguard weak nations and referred to the case of Armenia.

"This great human document that I brought back from Paris will protect all weak nations. It will provide that the legitimate grievances of all weak nations will be brought before the bar of public opinion. This creates perfect all-women's rights," said the president.

"You have not been told what a glorious American document it is. It creates not the power of the strong, but protects the right of the weak. It is one of the first charters of mankind. Yet there are men who approach this with the jaundiced eyes of some private purpose of their own. These men will be gibed.
